Clever and ingenious structure and assembly

The whole system is hidden within a decorative pot A. The culture pot B is placed inside the decorative pot. The water mixed with fertilizer C, whose level in the pot is indicated by the water-level indicator D. This provides the plant with water and nutritive substances. The expanded clay E anchors the plant, stores air and water and has a decorative effect.

What is HydroCulture?

Your plants are rooted not in soil but in expanded clay granules, a clay-based one-hundred-percent natural product. In this way the plants profit by optimal growing conditions: an ideal balance between air, water and food supply. The reserve of nutrient solution in the pot provides a well-balanced feeding.
